

THE PREFINITE PAPER

#16 A TIME OF REFLECTION | 9 MARCH 2021

“

Hello and welcome to the latest edition of The Prefinite Paper! We are sharing interesting news from our friends in Jakarta and Bali. We hope you find them informative and insightful.

On another note, the upcoming Balinese Day of Silence or Nyepi will be the perfect occasion to reflect on how we have progressed since our lives collectively shifted almost exactly a year ago. Let's all take a moment to slow down and contemplate on the things we have achieved, and plot how we'd want to move forward.

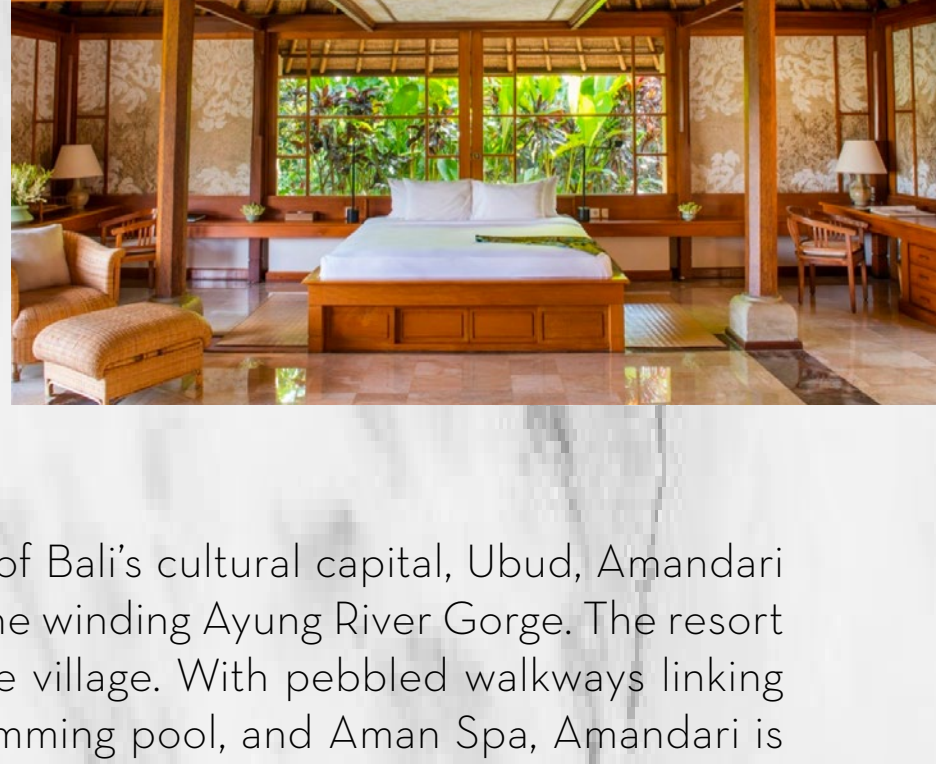

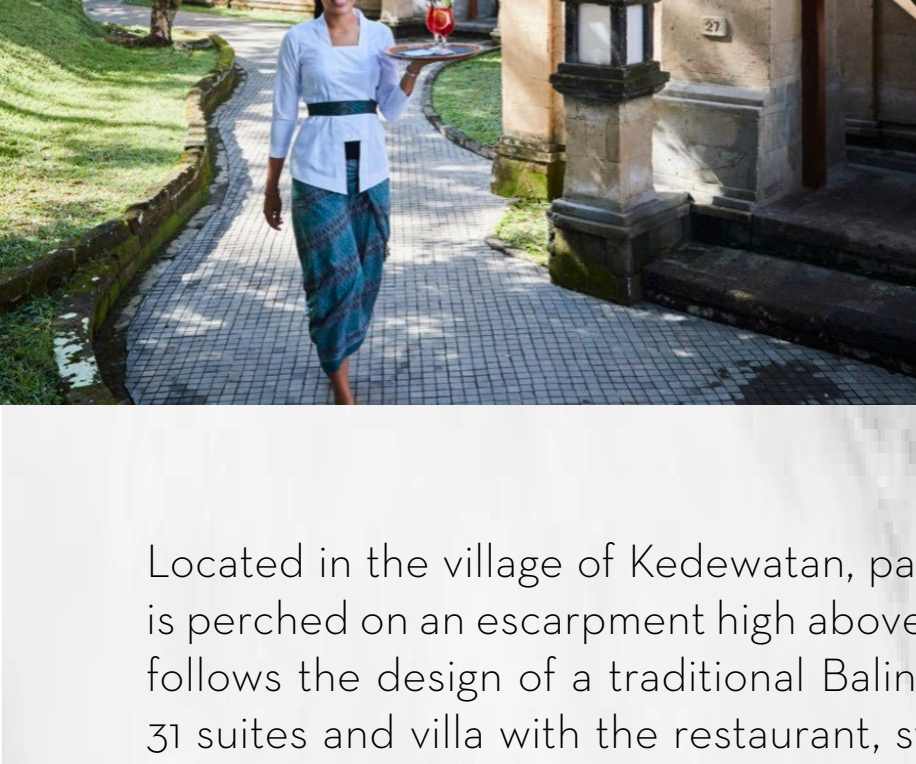

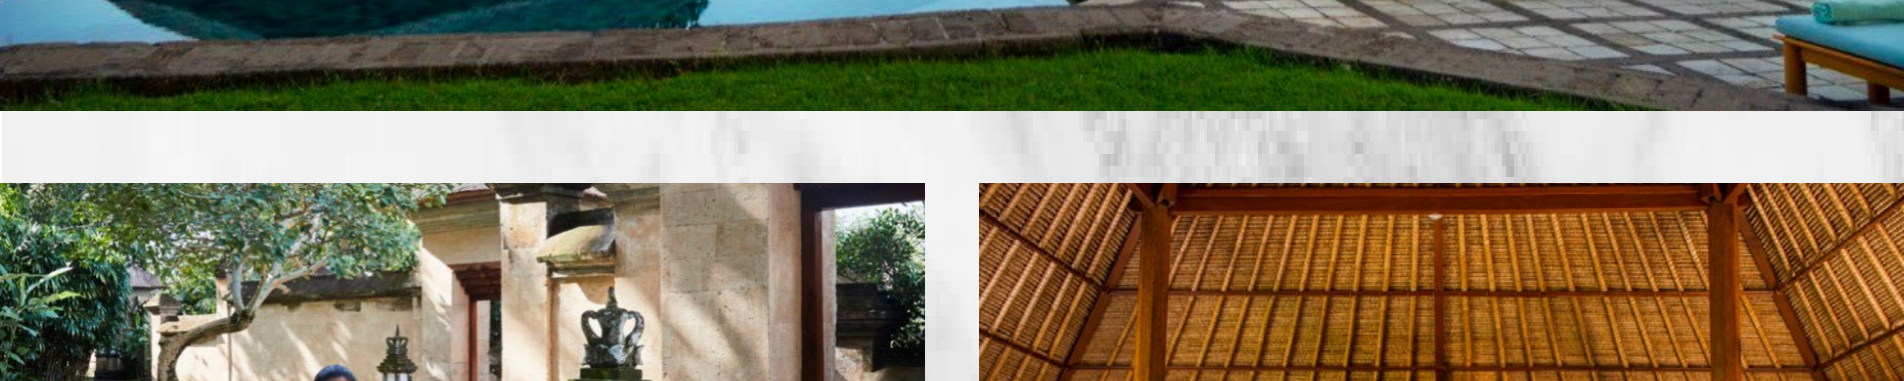

Stay safe and healthy,

NYEPI: THE DAY OF SILENCE

The month of March brings Nyepi - the day of silence throughout the whole of Bali. In the Balinese lunar calendar (Saka), Nyepi is New Year's Day. It is a day wholly dedicated to rest, staying in, turning off the lights and keeping quiet for 24 hours. It is one of the biggest and most unique ceremonies of the year, where staying in and resting is enforced by law. It is practiced island-wide where the Balinese dedicate an entire day to introspection and spiritual cleansing. No businesses are open, no transport is allowed on the roads (except for emergency services) the airport even shuts down for 24 hours. Nyepi is a sacred day to give the island a break from 364 days of human activity, so Bali can replenish and recharge for the new year.
