Belvedere is a Polish rye vodka brand produced and distributed by Louis Vuitton Moët Hennessy (LVMH). The name Belvedere is derived from Belweder, the Polish presidential palace in Warsaw that now graces the bottle of the vodka. Produced in Żyrardów, Poland, Belvedere is made from 100% Dankowskie rye, a variety known for its smooth and delicate flavor. Four times distilled and filtered through charcoal has created a clean and crisp taste of Belvedere. This makes it a popular choice for cocktails and martinis, and it can also be enjoyed on the rocks or top with soda water.

Moët Hennessy is the wines, champagnes and spirits division of LVMH and houses some of the global lifestyle industry's best brands, such as Cognac: Hennessy V.S.O.P and Hennessy X.O; Champagne: Moët & Chandon, Dom Perignon, and Veuve Clicquot; Wine: Chandon (sparkling) and Cloudy Bay; Single Malt Scotch Whisky: Glenmorangie; Premium Tequila: Volcan; and Premium Vodka: Belvedere.
